Stanford Willed Body Program – Information for Donors

The decision to donate your body to Stanford upon your death represents a priceless gift to the world of medical education and a tremendous opportunity for the students who will one day be among our society’s most talented—and best trained—doctors and scientists. Thank you for considering making such a donation. Our faculty, students, and staff are very grateful for the kindness our donors have extended, and bodies are treated with the greatest respect while in our care.

The Willed Body Donor Program at Stanford University is making the following change to its policies.

Effective January 1, 2020: Stanford’s Willed Body Donor Program will NO longer return cremains (ashes) for donors registered with our program. Note: This change will impact all current and future registrants. Please notify your loved ones, next of kin and caregiver(s) about this policy change.

How The Program Works

Once you register to become a donor to the Willed (Whole) Body Program, Stanford’s Division of Clinical Anatomy will keep your name and contact information on file. Upon your death, a caregiver or family member must contact us right away as we must receive body donations promptly into our facility, within 12 hours of death.

We take calls 24 hours/day, every day of the year. If accepted, we then arrange for a funeral home to transport the body to Stanford Medical School. Stanford will only transport bodies from within a 150-mile radius of the campus.

Once study of the body is complete, the remains are cremated and scattered or interred in a thoughtful and respectful manner. The Willed Body Program incurs all preparation, cremation and disposition expenses.

Please share this important information with your next of kin, power of attorney, caregivers, physician and/or anyone else you deem necessary. Please also have it attached to your medical chart if you are in a hospital or facility.
Frequently asked questions

Can Stanford decline my offer to donate?

Yes, Stanford may decline. We cannot guarantee in advance that your body will be accepted for donation. We urge you to prepare a backup plan with your family or caregiver(s) and inform them of the donation procedures so there will be no misunderstandings in the event your donation is declined.

What are the reasons Stanford would decline a donation?

Stanford has the right to refuse a donation and may do so for a variety of reasons including space, resources and timing. The following are a few of the reasons a donation will be declined: Infectious diseases (e.g. HIV, Hepatitis C, Hepatitis B, Tuberculosis, VRE or MRSA infection). If an autopsy has been performed on the body, and if death occurred during major surgery. This is not a complete list—there may be other circumstances in which we cannot accept a body.

Does the program cost anything?

Donors do not receive payment for their participation in the program, nor are they charged for participating. Stanford covers the cost of transporting the body to campus, as well the costs of cremation.

What if I change my mind?

Registering for the program indicates your intent to be a donor. However, it is not a legally binding contract. If you change your mind, simply notify us and we will remove you from our registration list.

Can I donate my body if I am also an organ donor?

No, bodies that have had their organs donated are not eligible for our program.

Is there an upper age limit?

No, there is no upper age limit to donate your body.

What are my family’s options for a funeral?

Because we must receive body donations promptly into our program (within 12 hours of death), it is not possible for the bodies of our donors to be present at a funeral or viewing.

Who should my family contact for a death certificate?

Stanford will assist in the completion of the death certificate, but we do not provide donor families with a certified copy. Your loved ones can request a copy at the County Clerk’s office in the county where death occurs.

Instructions for Family & Caregivers:

Thank you for helping to fulfill this donor’s wishes by contacting the Willed Body Program. You are playing an important part in the education of medical students at Stanford University.

Upon the death of a pre-registered donor, please notify us at 650-723-2404 as soon as possible. This phone number is monitored 24 hours a day, every day of the year.

When you call this number at time of death please make it known you are calling in regards to the “Willed Body Program”. Calling this number will page our on-call coordinator.

At that time, our coordinator will make a final determination as to whether the body can be accepted into our program. Acceptance into our program at time of death is dependent on many variables such as the condition of a body, resources and space. We strongly recommend that donors have a backup plan in place in case unforeseen circumstances prevent us from accepting your body donation at the time of death. If, at our discretion, we are unable to accept the body, your family must make alternate arrangements for it. If a donor is accepted into our program we will arrange for their pickup and transportation to Stanford.

Please be advised, pickup for accepted donors at time of death can be up to 10 hours (4-6 is typical) which is based on variable factors beyond our control such as distance, time of day, and call volume.

Death Certificate

Stanford will assist in coordinating the filing of this certificate for you. You can request a copy at the County Clerk’s office in the county where the death occurred.
