The Stanford Women & Sex Differences in Medicine (WSDM) Center and the Stanford Neurosciences Institute present

Basic & Translational Research Symposium on Sex Differences in Neurosciences

Wednesday, March 8, 2017 • 12:00 – 5:00 pm • Berg Hall, Li Ka Shing Ctr • Stanford Medicine
Light lunch served at noon Please RSVP by March 1 http://tinyurl.com/BT-2017-RSVP

Opening Remarks: Marcia Stefanick, PhD, Director, Stanford WSDM Center and William Newsome, PhD, Vincent V.C. Woo Director, Stanford Neurosciences Institute

KEYNOTE: Margaret M. McCarthy, PhD, University of Maryland School of Medicine Neuroinflammation, Neuroepigenetics and Male Vulnerability

Catherine S. Woolley, PhD, Northwestern University Sex-Specific Synaptic Modulation in the Hippocampus

Marc Breedlove, PhD, Michigan State University Sex Differences in Anxiety-Related Behaviors

Nirao Shah, MD, PhD, Stanford Medicine Neural Circuits Underlying Sex Differences in Social Interactions

David S. Hong, MD, Stanford Medicine Revisiting X & Y: What Sex Chromosome Aneuploidies Can Tell Us About Sex Differences

Joachim Hallmayer, Dr. med, MD, and Ruth O’Hara, PhD, Stanford Medicine Gender Differences in Autism Spectrum Disorder: Current Findings and Theories

Michael Greicius, MD, MPH, Stanford Medicine Genetic Insights into Sex-Based Differences in Alzheimer’s Disease Risk

Beth Darnall, PhD, Stanford Medicine The Role of Sex in Pain Psychology & Application of a Novel Psychobehavioral Intervention

Closing Remarks