The Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences at Stanford University School of Medicine is seeking a full-time faculty member in the Clinician Educator Line, at the rank of Clinical Instructor or Clinical Assistant Professor, to conduct clinical care and teaching in the Division of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry. The position will be based at the Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences.

The chosen candidate will serve as an attending psychologist and provide clinical care in the Pediatric Anxiety and Traumatic Stress outpatient specialty clinic affiliated with the Early Life Stress and Pediatric Anxiety Program. Responsibilities include conducting outpatient evaluations and treatment (individual, family, and group psychotherapy) as well as providing supervision and didactics to psychology graduate students, postdocs, and psychiatry fellows. Clinical research opportunities are also available.

Applicants should have experience in evidence-based assessment and treatment for both children and adolescents with Anxiety, OCD and related disorders. Applicants should have extensive training in Evidenced-Based Practice, such as cognitive behavioral therapy, behavior modification (e.g., exposure and response prevention and habit reversal therapy), mindfulness-based approaches, and parent training, in addition to group intervention approaches and experience working with comorbid conditions. The candidate should be able to provide treatment services to children with a range of conditions (in addition to anxiety disorders) such as disruptive behavior and mood disorders. Qualifications include a PhD or PsyD from an APA-approved clinical psychology program, completion of an APA-approved internship, and a minimum of one year of postdoctoral training in child psychology. Preference will be given to applicants who have completed the EPPP and are currently licensed in the state of California.

Stanford University is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty. It welcomes nominations of and applications from women and members of minority groups, as well as others who would bring additional dimensions to the university’s research, teaching and clinical missions. Interested candidates should send a cover letter, current curriculum vitae, and three letters of reference via e-mail to:
