

Healthy participants needed for Stanford Moyamoya Studies

The Stanford Moyamoya Center is currently recruiting healthy participants for a research study on the Moyamoya disease. Moyamoya is a rare cerebrovascular disease causing occlusion of brain arteries that can affect both children and adult. There is no effective drug treatment and this study aims to identify the genetic and molecular basis of Moyamoya disease.

Researchers for this study are looking for participants who:

- Are Caucasian.
- Are women.
- Are age 21-60.
- Are not pregnant.
- Are in good health and no history of cerebrovascular disease.
- Can donate a small amount of blood for the study.
- Can fill out a health history form.
- Participant will receive $25 giftcard.

If interested please contact Anthony Bet 650-683-5823.

Participant's rights questions, contact 1-866-680-2906.