SUPPORT GROUP
Addressing Memory Issues: A New Perspective

Group meetings provide a supportive environment in which individuals can gain insight into memory issues and develop better coping skills. The group’s agenda will respond flexibly to the needs of group members. Meetings are led by Shamala Kanchan, MD, who has extensive experience treating memory disorders.

For more information, please call: (650) 858-3915
No cost. Registration required. Open to Veterans and Non-Veterans.

The group is primarily designed for people who have a family history of dementia, who care for a relative with dementia, or who worry that their memory may become worse. Potential members should not have a diagnosis of dementia or other cognitive impairment.
