Conference Information

STATEMENT OF NEED
Over the past several decades, the incidence of neuroendocrine tumors (NETs) has sharply increased. The selection of initial and subsequent therapies requires careful consideration of both tumor and treatment characteristics. This CME conference seeks to fulfill the need in the Endocrinology, Hematology, Medical Oncology, Surgical Oncology, and Nuclear Radiology community to increase and improve the fund of knowledge concerning updates on guidelines and best practice recommendations to appropriately assess, treat, manage and incorporate multidisciplinary care for patients with Neuroendocrine Tumors (NETs). The conference will utilize lectures, case studies, panel discussions, and interactive tools to engage the learners.

TARGET AUDIENCE (Who Should Attend)
This is a national program, designed for physicians in the following specialties:
• Oncology
• Radiology
• Endocrinology
• Hematology
• Medical Oncology
• Surgical Oncology
• Nuclear Radiology

LEARNING OBJECTIVES
At the conclusion of this activity, learners will be able to:
• Review basics of NET nomenclature, pathology, and epidemiology in order to select appropriate therapies
• Evaluate the various imaging modalities available to NET patients and consider strengths and limitations to each for appropriate diagnosis and surveillance
• Evaluate existing and new treatment options for patients with NETs and develop an approach to initiate and sequence treatment that integrates pathology and diagnostics

ACCREDITATION
The Stanford University School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

CREDIT DESIGNATION
The Stanford University School of Medicine designates this live activity for a maximum of 3.50 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

COMMERCIAL SUPPORT ACKNOWLEDGEMENT
This CME activity is supported in part by educational grants. A complete list of commercial supporters will be published in the course syllabus.

REGISTRATION
Registration fee includes course materials, certificate of participation, and breakfast.
