

Samar Hafida, MD

Adult Endocrinologist, Joslin Diabetes Center,
Instructor, Harvard Medical School

Samar Hafida, MD is an adult endocrinologist at Joslin Diabetes in Boston, MA. Her special interests include weight management and the effect of metabolic surgery in the management of type 2 diabetes. She completed medical school from Tripoli University in Libya, followed by residency at the University of Nevada School of Medicine in Las Vegas. She then completed an endocrinology fellowship at Wayne State University and a subspecialty training in obesity medicine at Boston University. Later she joined the clinical faculty at Joslin diabetes Center where she treats weight disorders and diabetes. In addition to her clinical work, Samar is passionate about medical education and delivery of diabetes care to health systems. She is assistant director of global education and is involved in several education initiatives geared to a wide variety of learners and provides consultation to health systems on reforming diabetes care and improving outcomes.