

Why does autism research need your DNA?

We all have questions about autism, and we all want answers.

Your DNA could hold the answer that sparks the next genetic discovery for autism.

SPARK needs thousands of people with autism and their families. When you join, you will be asked to provide a saliva sample and to share information about you and your family. We take your privacy seriously. There is no cost to participate and enrollment is entirely online.

Together, we can find answers for autism. Join us.
