

Communication in Serious Illness: Getting to Yes

James A. Tulsky, MD

Chair, Department of Psychosocial Oncology and Palliative Care, Dana-Farber Cancer Institute
Chief, Division of Palliative Medicine, Department of Medicine, Brigham and Women's Hospital
Professor of Medicine, Harvard Medical School

High-quality care for seriously ill patients depends upon communication that is patient-centered, clear, attends to the central role of affect in the medical encounter, and results in care consistent with patients' goals. This talk will describe an evidence-based approach to effective serious illness communication that allows patients, families, and clinicians to feel satisfied with the care.