

The Lack of Diversity in Medicine is a National Emergency: The Way Forward

Quinn Capers, IV, MD, FACC, FSCAI

Dean of Admissions and Professor of Medicine - Ohio State University College of Medicine
Program Director of Interventional Cardiology at the Wexner Medical Center

Internal Medicine Special Noon Grand Rounds

LKSC 120 August 12, 2019 at 12:00 pm – 1:00 pm

“When barriers like unconscious race, gender and sexuality biases are removed, more students can bring their diverse backgrounds to health care, ultimately improving care for our diverse patient populations.”

Dr. Capers, IV is an interventional cardiologist and Associate Dean for admissions at The Ohio State University College of Medicine. He has brought about a 44% increase in total applications; an increase in women matriculates such that women have outnumbered men; underrepresented minority students going from 13% to 26% and an increase in average MCAT score to the 94th percentile

CME Credit will be offered

Special thanks to Pedro Tanaka MD of the Pediatrics Anesthesia Department