Child and Adolescent Psychiatrist
Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences
Stanford University School of Medicine

The Division of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry at Stanford University is seeking a full-time faculty member in the Clinician Educator line to provide clinical care and teaching in our inpatient programs. Additional work in our outpatient child and adolescent psychiatry clinics is also possible. Rank and salary will be commensurate with experience. Elective research time may be available, and involvement in clinical research projects is encouraged. Lucile Packard Children's Hospital at Stanford provides exposure to a wide range of scholarly and community outreach activities including campus-wide research and clinical working groups, as well as parent education and support activities.

Eligible physician candidates must have a medical degree or equivalent degree, completed training in General Psychiatry and subspecialty training in Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, be board certified or board eligibility in General Psychiatry by August 2016, and possess or be fully eligible for a California medical license.

Stanford University is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty. It welcomes nominations of and applications from women, members of minority groups, protected veterans and individuals with disabilities, as well as from others who would bring additional dimensions to the university's research, teaching and clinical missions.

Interested candidates should send a cover letter and current curriculum vitae via e-mail to:
