

Pediatric Psychologist – Medical Specialty Clinics

The Division of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry at Stanford University is seeking a Pediatric Psychologist for a full-time faculty position in the Clinician Educator line to provide clinical care and teaching. The chosen candidate will serve as an attending psychologist providing initial evaluations, consultation, and evidence-based treatment, including brief individual and family therapy. The primary assignment will be to medical specialty clinics such as stem cell, solid organ transplant, and craniofacial program. Additionally, a portion of the psychologist's time will be dedicated to providing initial evaluations and treatment to patients in the Medical Coping and Wellness Clinic within the Division, treating patients with co-occurring medical and psychiatric diagnoses. The chosen candidate will engage in supervision and teaching of psychology graduate students, and postdoctoral psychology, and psychiatry fellows. Stanford Medicine Children's Health provides exposure to a wide range of scholarly and community outreach activities including campus-wide research and clinical working groups, as well as parent education and support activities.

Eligibility criteria for this position include a doctoral degree from an APA-accredited graduate program in clinical or counseling psychology, APA-accredited clinical psychology internship, at least one year of post-doctoral clinical training in child and adolescent psychology, and licensure or license-eligibility as a psychologist in the state of California. Applicants should have experience working in the field of pediatric psychology providing evaluations and evidence-based treatment to children and adolescents with medical illnesses.

Rank and salary will be commensurate with experience, and ranges from $140,000-$270,000.

This position commands a competitive salary enhanced by an attractive benefits package, including but not limited to competitive compensation including home purchase programs, bonus programs, and vacation time, as well as comprehensive benefits include health/dental/vision, paid malpractice, and 403(b) plans.

Stanford is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. Stanford also welcomes applications from others who would bring additional dimensions to the University's research, teaching, and clinical missions.

Interested candidates should send a cover letter and current curriculum vitae via e-mail to:

Elizabeth Archibald, M.A.
Email: earchiba@stanford.edu

Please title the email "Pediatric Psychologist – Specialty Clinics"