

Consultation-Liaison Psychiatrist – Emergency Psychiatry Specialist

The Division of Medical Psychiatry in the Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences at Stanford University School of Medicine is seeking a full-time psychiatrist to provide high-quality care on the Emergency Psychiatry Service (EPS). As part of the EPS team, applicants will work collaboratively with social workers, emergency medicine colleagues, admitting medicine/surgical teams, case managers, and additional staff to provide mental health care for patients in the emergency department setting. This position is under the Clinician Educator (CE) Service Line. The Clinician Educator role is defined by engagement in clinical care and teaching that advances clinical medicine. Clinician Educators are also encouraged to engage in scholarly activities and/or perform in an administrative role.

Ideal candidates will be expected to serve as an Emergency Psychiatry attending on the Emergency Psychiatry Service. Teaching responsibilities include working with residents, medical students, and psychiatric nurse practitioners. A commitment to interdisciplinary teamwork, including collaboration in a team setting with advanced practice providers and social workers, and strong communication skills are essential.

Eligible candidates must hold an MD/DO degree (or equivalent), be ABPN board-certified or eligible in Psychiatry, and BC/BE in Consultation Liaison Psychiatry. Demonstrated record of interest or training in integrated behavioral health models such as the Collaborative Care Model is preferred. Experience with primary care psychiatry and/or consultation liaison psychiatry is desired.

Rank and salary will be commensurate with experience.
