Mission and scope

Mission

IR&DS's mission is to facilitate institutional decision making at Stanford University ↗ by:

- Providing integrated analysis and research needed by University decision makers
- Publishing reports that provide insight into the performance of the institution.
- Assessing and evaluating Stanford's academic and co-curricular support programs
- Building data collections and facilitating access to data, including providing training and tools
- Disseminating and facilitating best practices in the collection, use, and interpretation of data
- Advocating for data quality and integrity

IR&DS accesses, utilizes, analyzes, and reports on data from all of the major administrative systems at Stanford, including student, faculty, course, research, and financial data. IR&DS performs and facilitates complex analyses for both departments and central offices, including collaborating with other universities to provide comparative data, and proactively publishing management reports.

GSC and IR&DS survey will be sent out around the week of Nov. 8

CGAP Updates

- Improving the rotations mentor/mentee matching process
- Admissions Update
- Rigor and reproducibility training
