The Stanford Tobacco Prevention Toolkit (TPT) is a collection of theory-based, evidence-informed resources created by educators, researchers, youth, and parents to help prevent tobacco and nicotine use among middle and high school students. These publications (1) overview current tobacco prevention and cessation programs, including the TPT; (2) describe the development and use of the TPT; and (3) evaluate the TPT in various settings.

Updated January 10, 2022